is Block's assistant manager Mack Hamdon. The beef is one of several door prizes up for grabs at the fair, which takes place this weekend at the curling rink and the Legion hall.

Complaints stir action

Complaints about the intersection at the south entrance to Drayton Valley resulted in quick action by Alberta Transportation.

RCMP Cpl. Tom Turner said the detachment was inundated with complaints from residents who were concerned there was no indication to motorists the right-hand lane became a turning lane just prior to the junction of Highway 22 and 50th Street.

Turner said these concerns were relayed to Alberta Transportation just before he went on vacation, and he noted that painted arrows indicating the right-hand lane were present when he returned last week.

"I understand (signage is) forthcoming," he added.

Turner pointed out the complaints were received following the fatal collision just south of Drayton Valley on July 27, which took the lives of both drivers.

While the fatal accident "really wasn't related" to the intersection, Turner said it was the proximity of the accident to this area that resulted in the calls.

The corporal added that Alberta Transportation generally acts favorably when the RCMP raise concerns generated by the public.

High gasoline prices hurting economy?

By Frank Ryan

Dave Lundberg, a town councillor, feels that high gasoline prices are hurting the economy.

"We're being penalized. It's driving business out of town," he says.

Lundberg raised the issue of high gasoline prices in Drayton Valley during a recent town council meeting. He suggested at the time that it was an issue the chamber of commerce should be looking into.

"The chamber should be writing the oil companies," Lundberg insists.

Lundberg says he has talked to the service station managers in town and they are saying the oil companies are setting the price. "I don't blame the service stations, it's the oil companies," he added.

A survey taken by The Western Review during the Labor Day weekend revealed that stations in Drayton Valley were selling regular gas for 42.9 cents a litre. This compared with 39.9 at Ennisville, Airdrie and Dredge. It was even lower at Warburg station, where motorists could fill up for 34.9.

Chamber president Grant Monsour says the price of gas in town has never been brought up. Although he did plan to introduce the issue at Monday's (yesterday) directors' meeting.

Councillor Dave Lundberg
"It would be nice to have a price war."

"It's a viable concern," Monsour said.

In reference to the difference in prices the chamber president said, "Actually, I wonder about the wisdom of these decisions."

The chamber president said he was aware the service stations didn't set the prices, but wondered how the oil companies target markets.

However, he didn't agree with Lundberg that higher gas prices in Drayton Valley were affecting business. "No one will drive out to Warburg just to fill up," he said.

"It would be nice to have a price war," the chamber president admitted.

Alder Flats annexation appears likely soon

The paper work has started that will likely see Alder Flats join the Municipal District of Brazeau.

The MD has been asked to make representation to the Local Authorities Board to annex the Alder Flats area presently controlled by the County of Wetaskiwin No. 10 and the MD of Clearwater.

John Erickson, manager of the Municipal District of Brazeau is assuming the annexation will happen. The application is expected to take two months.

Residents of Alder Flats started the annexation process by sending a 300-name petition to Municipal Affairs Minister Dennis Anderson.

Erickson says his office has also heard rumblings that Moon Lake has sent a similar petition to the minister requesting annexation procedures begin.

Before the MD takes the Alder Flats request to the Local Authorities Board, the rumored Moon Lake petition will be checked out with the minister's office so they can both be done at the same time.

"I don't see this being any problem. It's usually determined by the will of the people," Erickson told The Western Review.

Once the Local Authorities Board has been contacted, a number of public hearings will be held. It's not known at this time where the hearings will be located.

Another video outlet, 24-Hour Video, has been advertising for staff, pending the opening of a new store in Drayton Valley.

Officials from 7-Eleven visited their vacant lot in Drayton Valley recently, but no decision has been made as to when they plan to proceed with a new store at the corner of 50 St. and 50 Ave.

The installation of supermailboxes in Drayton Valley has been delayed because of the postal strike.

Postmaster LeRoy Robinson says Canada Post officials are expected in town any day to begin their investigation into possible supermailbox sites.

A three-page questionnaire on tourism will be delivered door to door in Drayton Valley.

Results of the questionnaire will be turned over to the new tourist action plan committee and, hopefully, will assist them in their decision making.

Each questionnaire will include a self-addressed envelope so the homemaker can answer the questions and return them to the town.

The lease still hasn't been signed between the owners of the Dodson Mall and owners of the IGA for a new store being proposed for the south end of the mall.

Last week's minor hockey meeting was informed the town will be installing a skate sharpening machine in the new arena.

Fish and wildlife officer Fred Kreiser was investigating two complaints of bear sightings last Thursday; one near the old driveway and one north of the golf course.

The chamber of commerce reports 2200 people visited their tourist booth this summer.

Garbage truck burns

Fire last Wednesday during the lunch hour at the Drayton Valley landfill destroyed the cab of this V.J. Disposal garbage truck. The truck scraped a guardrail coming over the weigh scale, puncturing the propane tank, with the flames being ignited from the exhaust system. The driver escaped without injury.

Macintosh happy with Getty shuffle

Rob Macintosh

Pembina Institute director Rob Macintosh has applauded Premier Don Getty's shuffling of Ken Kowalski out of the environment portfolio.

"Kowalski has been making himself increasingly foolish over the last year or so, not only to environmentalists but to the general public as well," Macintosh said last week following the cabinet shuffle which saw the environment minister move to career development and lotteries.

Macintosh said the Oldman River dam controversy was "just one of a number of stones hanging around Kowalski's neck."

By far his biggest weakness, however, was the former environment minister's inability to deal effectively with environmental groups, said Macintosh.

"Kowalski's problem was that he took a brush and tried to paint every environmentalist...as dope-smoking, socialist threats to society."

The PIAD director, who predicted Kowalski's downfall a few weeks ago, said the increasing public concern about environmental issues led to his removal as the department's minister.

Macintosh said the change has the potential for bringing about a "big improvement."

Getty's cabinet shuffle affected eight ministers last Wednesday.

MD vehicles in 'poor condition'

The Brzeau municipal district's fleet of vehicles can't exactly be described as fresh off the assembly line.

An inventory conducted by director of public works Richard Tatso found the fleet, formerly owned by the County of Parkland, to be generally "in poor condition...requiring replacement over the next few years."

As an example, Tatso informed councillors at a meeting last week Parkland pumped $98,500 into a 1969 D7 Cat over the past five years. The original purchase price was $46,500.

The Cat is usually "out of service more than it's in," said Tatso.

He added the long-term prognosis for many of the MD's vehicles is not good.

"Some units are in far worse condition, or are more questionable, than others," noted Tatso.

Since the municipality's formation on July 1, the Brzeau has purchased equipment it considers as most crucial to the MD's operation: a tandem; two half ton trucks; a couple of crawler tractors, and three graders.

Tatso told council that "over the next one to three years, we're going to realistically have to purchase additional new equipment or live with the down time."

Councillors crossed their fingers and hoped for another Indian summer when bearing their new tandem may not be delivered until late in October. The tandem is essential equipment for the snow-clearing of MD roads.

In an interview, Reeve Henry Bradeau said council remains adamant in its insistence that it wants to contract out municipal services. He noted that such things as emergency construction will be purchased by the MD, but reiterated the Brzeau wants to depend as much as possible on the free-enterprise system.

Brzeau names officer

The Brzeau MD believes it has come up with an answer to its beaver problems.

The council voted last week to hire resident Brian Gathercole as its beaver flood control officer.

Gathercole will destroy troublesome beaver dams in the area as a "stop-gap measure" for the remainder of 1988. Next year, the newly-created agricultural service board will look into more permanent ways of controlling beaver dams in the municipality, Reeve Henry Bradeau told council.

Local man gets four months

A Drayton Valley man has been sentenced to a total of four months in jail.

Randall Kennedy Inglis, 28, pleaded guilty to driving over the .05 mg blood alcohol limit and driving while disqualified.

The judge handed Inglis a 90-day jail term for the drunken driving charge and a consecutive 30-day sentence for the second offence.

He was also suspended from driving for three years.

Inglis appeared in Drayton Valley provincial court last week. He has two previous related convictions.

Slow-pitch gains popularity, baseball/fastball dying

The curtain came down recently on what has been determined as a very successful slow-pitch season in Drayton Valley.

It's a summer sports pastime that continues to grow in popularity. Evidence of that was the 46 teams who played during the months of May-June and the 42 that signed up for July-August. Thirty-one of those participated in the year-end tournament.

Up until this year slow-pitch didn't seem to have any direction. They just played ball.

But a 10-member executive, elected by the teams, appear to have added some meaning to the league.

Some teams don't like the idea of a co-ed league, whereby males and females rotate throughout the batting order, but it has developed a more even league.

It doesn't matter what league you're in, or how the rules are structured, there will always be teams who take the game a little more seriously than others.

For those, it has been suggested a men's league be formed and the existing slow-pitch league could continue. Such a league would undoubtedly consist of many of the fastball players who have jumped at the chance to play slow-pitch this year.

While we've seen slow-pitch grow by leaps and bounds the past three summers, fastball and baseball at the adult level have gone the other way.

The Evergreen Men's Fastball League is in serious danger of not operating next year. If they do, it might be with a couple of teams.

The Oilfield Baseball League managed to survive this past season with three teams. They desperately need more clubs.

Talking easy part, now all we need is money

The trail system that has been started in the Northview residential area by the town is a GREAT idea.

But let's not STOP there.

I believe it is the town's hope to tie this trail system into an expansive drainage system that will extend along 43 Street up past St. Anthony's and Frank Maddock high school.

A loop through Aspenview would satisfy a lot of long-time residents in that area. However, we understand it is a private development and the prospects of any sort of trail system seems unlikely at this time.

After proceeding up 43 St. the trails could wind through Celebrity Heights, the hospital area, across 50 St. into Hillside and Park Place, through West Valley

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

Park, and end there or even proceed through the industrial area, MacKenzie Park and back to Northview.

The easiest part of this is talking about it. Now all we need is the money. Maybe the town could look at some possible grants.

Evidence of that is the lack of donations coming in for the arena and curling rink.

And money seems to be pretty scarce around here.

The Community Centre Society recently turned $50,000 of their $200,000 commitment for the new arena over to the town.

The curling rink has approximately $275,000 toward their new, and as of now, unstarted six-sheet curling rink, next to the arena.

And the town has also been experiencing money problems. They sold the library building to Radio Shack, but instead of selling the town office to the consortium, they are entering a six-year lease agreement.

The town, like the Community Centre Society and the curling club, are also lacking in donations from major industry.

Let's hope those funds are on their way.

Municipal district assists Easyford

The Brassau municipal district council has agreed to continue assisting the Easyford playground with its insurance costs.

The MD council voted last week to pay the portion of the school's liability insurance premium formerly subsidized by the County of Parkland.

The council will decide on Jan. 1 whether to continue to do this on a permanent basis. A similar arrangement has been worked out between the MD and the playground in Lodgepole.

ID administrator leaving post end of September

The man largely responsible for overseeing the creation of the Brazeau MD in Drayton Valley will be ending his stay here Sept. 30.

Earl Briscoe was named interim administrator of ID 222 last January, following the initial separation of the municipality from ID 14 and from the counties of Leduc and Parkland.

He helped guide the ID towards its municipal district status, which came to fruition July 1.

Briscoe has been acting in an advisory capacity at the Brazeau head office since John Eriksson filled the position of municipal manager last month.

"It was a tremendous help to us to have Earl here," said Reeve Henry Rondeau at last week's regular council meeting. "I know that many times he took a lot of flak from both ends."

Rondeau said Briscoe was instrumental in quickening the pace of the municipality's transformation from an ID to an MD, which was completed in six months instead of the planned 12-month period.

Briscoe said he will focus his last days at the MD office on identifying what still needs to be completed.

"It has been a pleasure to work on this project...it's been a challenge," he told councillors. "I think I benefited from the experience as well. I'm going to miss the area."

In an interview, Briscoe said he's considering three positions currently open to him — two of which are special projects.

Alberta enjoys reputation as waterfowl haven

A dozen people turned out last Thursday night to learn more about Ducks Unlimited (DU).

Jeff Forsyth, regional coordinator explained the history of DU and showed two films.

Doug Meszaros, a Pelican Spruce Mills employee who was involved with DU at Edmonton, hopes to get it going here.

One of their first projects will be a major fund raising dinner Oct. 20.

These fund raising dinners have been very productive for Ducks Unlimited. In four years, the Edson group has raised about $25,000 while the first-ever dinner held at Whitesurf, drew 163 people and netted $14,300.

Albertans and DU Canada have been working together for the past five decades to ensure the province maintains its reputation as one of the finest havens for waterfowl anywhere in North America. In fact, Alberta is the most active region of any in terms of the DU Canada waterfowl habitat conservation program across the nation.

One of the first wetland reconstruction projects ever tackled by the private, non-profit conservation corporation was in the Medicine Hat area.

There are now over 1300 waterfowl production projects that have been developed and are maintained in operation in Alberta.

DU is involved in a "Wetlands for Tomorrow" project at Chip Lake and has also been involved in at least one project at Birch Lake.

Alberta serves as a major staging area for millions of ducks and geese migrating through the province each spring and fall.

You don't have to be a fisherman or hunter to belong to Ducks Unlimited. That was one message Forsyth tried to pound home at the Drayton Valley meeting.

"At our first dinner in Grande Prairie, two thirds of those in attendance were not into hunting. They were into camping, the outdoors," he stated.

Waterfowl decoys, excellent artwork, commemorative shotguns and dozens of other articles are often the types of items sold at the dinners. The funds go toward financing DU Canada projects.

Informal poll shows majority of voters undecided

By Steve Fletcher
Drayton Valley Liberals appear split between allegiances to Nick Taylor and Laurence Decore, an informal survey of delegates to the upcoming leadership convention shows.

Meanwhile, the third candidate seeking the leadership crown, M.L.A. Grant Mitchell, seems to have been left out in the political cold.

When asked who they planned on voting for, five Drayton Valley delegates sided with current leader Taylor while another five expressed support for Edmonton Mayor Laurence Decore. Mitchell was the first choice of only one delegate.

The largest block of votes, however, lies with those who are so far uncommitted: A total of seven area Liberals claim to be still undecided.

The informal poll was taken following the Drayton Valley Liberal Constituency Association's delegate-selection meeting at Breton high school last week.

As all delegates nominated were eventually acclaimed as association representatives, declaring which candidate each supported was not required.

Philippe Gibeau, president of the constituency association, said this will not only interest everyone's curiosity, but will also add a bit of mystery to the convention as the three candidates vie for potential support from the Drayton Valley delegates.

Gibeau, who has been president since 1985, noted that it's an exciting time to be a Liberal in Alberta. He believes the party's chances are good come the next provincial election.

I don't see us swinging too far left or too right. At the moment we're right up there with the Conservatives," he said in reference to a recent poll dealing with federal politics.

The number of local Liberals has tripled following an energetic door-knocking campaign held over the past few weeks.

About 26 area Liberals showed up at the delegate-selection meeting out of a total of 80 members.

Drayton Valley will be sending 17 people to the Calgary, including 12 delegates, two youth delegates and three constituency officers (president Gibeau, secretary Nevis LaBranche and treasurer Joan Prociuk), all of whom are automatically eligible to vote at the convention.

Birchwood champ an old pro at tough Lindale golf course

By Frank Ryan

A playoff was needed to decide the winner at last Thursday's first annual Birchwood Village Greens ladies' open golf tournament. Lyla Tucker of Drayton Valley, who's enjoyed her share of success over the years at Birchwood, formerly Lindale and Mubuck, defeated Fran Steszinski of Sylvan Lake on the first extra hole to capture the championship flight.

Both Tucker and Steszinski were tied at 94 after 18 holes. Tucker, whose husband Greg works at the Drayton Valley course, shot rounds of 51 and 43 while Steszinski had back-to-back rounds of 47.

Tucker, who previously won three spring tournaments at the old Lindale course, didn't think she had a chance after her opening round 51. "I thought I was out of it. I just relaxed on the second nine."

Doug Bucar, president of Birchwood Village Greens along with tournament organizer Lorna Swan, presented the championship trophy to Tucker.

Marina Knight of Rocky Mountain House captured the low net in the flight with a 73.

Another Rocky golfer, Carol Reay, took low gross honors in the first flight with a 95 and Kay Wright from the Black Bull course won the low net with a 72.

Sylvia Dickson, also from Black Bull, finished with a 95 to win the low gross in the second flight with low net honors going to Bonnie Johnson of Edson with a 66.

Ann Carl of Drayton Valley won low gross in the third flight with her 105 while Grace McCrindle, who golfs out of the Birchwood club had a 75 to capture the low net.

Karen Lenton of Rocky won low gross in the fourth flight with a 112 while Marie Bader of Birchwood captured the low net with 90.

Swan, who almost single-handedly organized the one-day tournament was excited with the turnout.

"I'm completely overwhelmed. I expected 20 or 30 of the girls to come out and have a fun day. Instead we attracted 80 golfers," she explained.

Thirty-eight of the participating golfers were from out of the area. Rocky Mountain House headed the list with 13 followed by eight from Mulhurst (Black Bull). Several golfers came from the Riverside course in Edmonton while others came from High River, Edson and Devon.

Besides the excellent turnout, Swan said the attitude of the sponsors she approached for prizes, was great.

Many of the golfers, some who had never played the course before, said they'd be back next year.

Woman selected to club helm

By Frank Ryan

For the first time in their 25-year history the Drayton Valley Golf Club has a woman president.

Vi Helm, who has been on the golf executive for the five years and past three as secretary, was elected to the position at a director's meeting last Monday night. She replaces Archie Hood who has been transferred to Edmonton as part of the Dome/Ameco merger.

Hood says his transfer came as a complete surprise.

Helm, who has lived in Drayton Valley for the past 25 years, has been golfing on a regular basis for the past 19 years. She golfed prior to that, but took some time off from the game to raise her family.

Besides being the first woman president of the golf club, Helm was also the first woman to be elected chairman of the County of Parkland school board, a position she held for two years.

At the present time she is on the advisory board with the new Twin Rivers school district, that will officially replace the county at the end of the year.

During the summer and her school board work in the winter, has worked extremely well for Helm.

Vi Helm

One of her first concerns at the course is to see the new third and fourth holes on the old nine finished. They will be needed this fall and should be ready for play next summer.

Another concern facing the new president and the entire executive, is a lack of business at the clubhouse. It hasn't been as busy as in past years.

"The executive plans to work on better use of the clubhouse," Helm says.

The lounge and kitchen area, on the second floor of the clubhouse, are open year-round. Bookings can be made by calling the golf course.

Local Cubs receive awards

Drayton Valley figured prominently at the Stony Plain-based Point West Cub's annual awards night recently.

Three players from town took home trophies for their performances in a year in which their team made it all the way to the Western Canadian championships.

Cory Dusterhoft garnered the most valuable player award, teammate Joey Hutzal won the batting championships and Jerry Bartlett was named rookie of the year.

Pankewicz sold to B.C. junior hockey league

The Grande Prairie North Stars have sent forward Trent Pankewicz to Powell River of the B.C. Junior Hockey League.

Don Moon, sports editor of the Grande Prairie Herald Tribune says Pankewicz, who had 36 goals and 44 assists with the North Stars last year, was sold to Powell River, formerly the Delta Stars, for an undisclosed amount of money.

After talking with the Drayton Valley Devils, Pankewicz finished second in the North Stars' scoring race last season and was fifth overall in the Peace Cariboo League.

North Stars coach Ken Head couldn't be reached for a comment on the decision to let one of his top scorers go.

Delecorsson, Darren Fedoruk, who also played at Grande Prairie last winter, is expected to return to their line-up for the 1988-89 season.

Brian Allen, another Devil, attended the North Stars' rookie and mals camps but because the Grande Prairie club wanted to go with local boys, he didn't make the cut.

Instead, Allen travelled to Dawson Creek on the weekend for a tryout with their Peace Cariboo hockey league club.

Jeff Thiel and Jeff Krukowski, who had also received invitations to attend the North Stars' Labor Day weekend camp, didn't show up. Krukowski went to the Williams Lake camp, but because he is still of midget age, he can't transfer out of the province.

And Greg Pankewicz attended the Sherwood Park camp during the Labor Day weekend.

Terry Fox Run route

Participants in Sunday's Terry Fox Run in Drayton Valley will follow the route outlined above. Registrations will begin at 12:30 p.m. at the Scout Hall with the run to follow at 1 p.m. A similar run will be held at Lindale, starting at 11 a.m. from the school. Come out Sunday and support a very worthwhile cause.

Smoke ban not here yet

A smoking ban on cigarette sales to teens 16-and-under hadn't hit Drayton Valley as of last Thursday.

However, merchants in Edmonton were being asked by the Retail Council of Canada to start enforcing the law. Four other sponsor organizations have combined to launch a national awareness campaign.

The little known Tobacco Restraint Act of 1985 forbids the sale of cigarettes to anyone under 16.

Murray

owner/operator of the North Red Rooster, told The Western Review his chain hadn't informed him of any plans to participate in the campaign.

According to Galvin, his store doesn't have a policy on the sale of cigarettes to teens 16 and under.

"It's not a big problem, not here anyways," Galvin says.

He feels the law would be easy to enforce, with the total cooperation of all the merchants.

Minor hockey to go ahead with outdoor rink

By Frank Ryan

The Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association plans to proceed with plans to build an outdoor rink.

The executive was given the "green light" to proceed at a standing-room-only general meeting at the Scott Hall last Tuesday night.

"If we want it, we have to build it ourselves," president Lanny Schultz told the meeting.

It is a minor hockey rink to be built on a regular size rink, complete with boards, on the east side of the town's new rink in West Valley Park.

Schultz also hopes to see other ice users, that could utilize the extra outdoor ice, pitch in and help build the much needed facility.

Once the rink is built Schultz says the town will run and maintain it.

The minor hockey president is confident the outdoor rink can be built for $5,000. But, a lot of that will be donated materials and volunteers to construct the actual rink.

Schultz has looked into some possible grant money but while a couple might be available, he feels it would take a month to six weeks to get. "We don't have the time to wait," he says.

One parent who attended the minor hockey meeting expressed his concerns over possible dust coming over from the mill and landing on the outdoor rink. It was decided to deal with that problem when, and if, it happens. Another problem raised at the meeting was the cold weather. It was decided that a temperature would be decided upon, and if it was colder than that, the outdoor rink would be closed.

"If we don't build this outdoor rink you will be assigned some early morning ice time," Schultz added.

It is the intention of minor hockey to use at least 20 hours of outdoor ice per week. The time will be split evenly amongst the teams.

The outdoor ice will be strictly a bonus, vice president Kevin Henry stated.

Construction is expected to start around the middle of the month.

The outdoor rink is not the only construction job facing minor hockey.

Last week's meeting was told that storage lockers, to be built under the seating area, would be the responsibility of minor hockey.

Originally, minor hockey was to understand the town would build the storage area.

The executive is currently looking at costs to put up a storage area where all the teams can leave their equipment.

Minor hockey ended the 1987-88 season with $1,661 in their bank account. They spent $43,198 after taking in $44,179.

Registrations last year accounted for $24,519 while donations totalled $12,045. Their biggest expense was for ice, and that bill came to $29,494. They also paid out $5,216 for officials' fees.

The 1988-89 hockey season is expected to get underway during the first week of October and last through the end of March.

Tractor pull to be bigger and better

The Lions Club will be holding its second annual tractor pull this weekend at the rodeo grounds.

The Lions have planned a number of additions which should make this year's edition even bigger and better than the last one, says Jerry Penill, chairman of the tractor pull committee.

One of the highlights of the two-day event will be the Boss Blue nailing team entry which will be exhibiting its amazing machines at the Road son Plaza on Friday.

I think Boss Blue will bring a lot of people in," Penill says, noting that it's usually a big attraction at tractor pulls. The Boss Blue is based in Saskatoon.

He adds that the club is hoping to draw a few thousand spectators a day to the pull, which begins at 2 p.m. each day.

We've been working on this one since the last one ended," Penill points out.

The event will also include the following: antique tractors, 4x4 mini trucks, 4x4 stock trucks, mini-tractors, B modified tractors, a super stock tractor operated by local resident Ray Guschl and wheel standers (vehicles driving distances on only their rear wheels).

A display of the mini tractors will also take place at the Derrick Mall. All profits will go toward community projects.

A lifetime experience, says Lakeland's queen

By Steve Fletcher

When Tania Sekura stepped in at the last moment for Evergreen Rodeo queen Mollie Davis, the 17 year old probably never suspected she'd end up walking away with the Lakeland Rodeo Association crown.

Nevertheless, Sekura, who was first runner up at Evergreen's rodeo contest, had "a lot of confidence" going into the rodeo association's main event at St. Paul Aug. 31/Sept. 4.

Judged on horsemanship (50 per cent), speed making (25 per cent) and posse and personality (25 per cent), Sekura believes she and Nashville, her four year old, quarter horse, did well in the riding segment of the contest.

Her five minute speed dealt with cruelty to animals.

"I never chose a side, I just mentioned a few incidents and made comparisons and asked where would you draw the line?"

Sekura was crowned Lakeland 1988 showdown queen on the final day of the event. She said the experience "definitely makes up 10 times over" for the disappointment of the rained-out Evergreen rodeo.

"It was a lifetime experience I'll never forget," added Sekura last Wednesday at the Lions Club meeting, where she thanked members for sponsoring her trip to St. Paul.

"It taught me a lot and I made friends I will never forget."

Sekura's winnings included, among other things, the use of the crown for a year, a $600 diamond cluster ring and a belt buckle.

It turned out to be a busy summer for the Grade 12 student, who also successfully completed a two-week course in auctioneering in Lacombe.

The diploma she received means she can now work for father, Wendy, at Sekura Ave. Lions.

Sekura said her future will centre around the auction mart, but hopes to also attend Olds College to study horsemanship and become a professional barrel racer.

No PCB problem

PCBs don't appear to be a problem in Drayton Valley.

At least that's the opinion of Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson.

When contacted by The Western Review about any possible PCB dangers in town, Fuson remarked "There isn't any that I'm aware of."

The fire chief said that to his knowledge the nearest dump site was located in Nisku.

He admitted there had been some chemical pits in the area, but all that has been stopped.

The head of the industrial waste branch of Alberta Environment has refused to divulge provincial storage sites.

There are an estimated 1600 PCB storage sites across the country. A Calgary newspaper says some experts claim in Alberta holds 80 per cent of the estimated 21,000 tonnes in use or in storage across the country.

Musical family life is instrumental in operation of new shop

By RUPY LUKAN YAWORSKI

Staff Writer

Music is more than a hobby for the Tobiasson family.

The Warburg area family's musical interests and talents have blossomed beyond an all-occasional band to include a new music shop in Lethbridge.

Despite its making music, re-pairing instruments and teaching culminated this summer in the opening of the new Tobiasson business, dubbed a one-stop music shop to Benji, who initiated the joint enterprise with mother Marie and father Ben Sr.

Ben Jr., a sixth grader, is slated to start a new job at a shop and teaching centre, says Ben Sr. Lethbridge's Music Shoppe, after the name Tobiasson's was put on the wall, was inaugurated on Monday, Aug. 12, with a grand opening reception and a musical performance.

Ben Sr., 40, and Marie, 38, are both graduates of the University of Alberta.

Part of family life

Music has always been part of life with the Tobiassons. Ben Jr. and his older brother, 11, are up well known and talented as well as their parents who played in area bands. The Tobiassons are also active in music. Ben Sr. has played with the Lethbridge and Marie's as well as the experience on the accordion.

We grew up playing, says Ben Jr.

We had no choice," adds Ben Sr., who helped with the business this summer. He returned to school.

Ben Sr. says, "The Music Shoppe provides a good ground for music education as well as preparing students to take on serious study."

Ben Jr. started serious training at age 12 under Frank Gray and Rodrick Cooke at Alberta College. He has performed at concerts and recitals throughout Alberta.

When teaching guitar, Ben Jr. tries to concentrate on the classical side, having been trained with the Western Board. Ben also teaches bass, mandolin and electric bass.

Cumbersome cuke

Vincent Lizec of Drayton Valley claims to have the biggest cucumber, weighing in at almost seven pounds. Several large sunflowers have also been reported, some 12 and 14 feet tall.

Needle shedding is natural

Farmstead pine trees and other evergreens shedding brown needles, need not be reason for concern, says an Alberta Agriculture specialist.

In most cases needle loss this time of year is a natural process, says Pam North, a horticulture specialist with the Alberta Tree Nursery and Horticulture Centre in Edmonton.

"In late summer and early fall many people notice the older needles on pine trees turning yellow to brown in color," says North.

"Occasionally this can be caused by disease or insects but most often it is just the natural shedding of needles.

While spruce trees also shed needles, pines have an open growth habit which makes autumn needle shed more visible. Needle shed is also very noticeable on cedar trees."

The specialist says pines generally shed needles that are three to four years old while spruce usually shed needles which are six to seven years old.

Although the needles are not replaced, the tree will get new growth on the ends of branches each spring.

To make sure the needle shed is just the natural process, North says to check the tree carefully to ensure it is not being attacked by an insect or disease. She says the property owner can consult a horticulturist or an Alberta Agriculture district agriculturalist if they are unsure.

Another factor which can contribute to needle shed is stress. North says if the tree is suffering from stress caused by drought, poor soil fertility, insects, transplant shock or pesticide damage it will often shed more than usual.

County protesting removal of sidearms from constables

The County of Parkland is getting its back up over a new set of regulations accompanying the Police Act which could see its special constables stripped of their sidearms.

County counsel has filed off a response to Alberta Solicitor General Ken Husted over a draft set of proposals which appear to bar special constables from carrying handguns unless they work for a federal or provincial agency or they enforce the Criminal Code.

The regulations would also make it tougher for municipalities to establish a special constable force.

Council also disputed regulations which would ban police from using handguns but allow them to use shotguns.

The county's special constables have packed pistols since the early 1960s.

"To our knowledge there have been no incidents with the county's police involving the use of a sidearm that would warrant this substantial change in policy on equipment," says Reeve Ken Fuhr.

The County of Parkland believes it has conducted and maintained its police force in an exemplary manner and are opposed to any regulations that firstly, infringe on local municipal decision making and secondly, revoke the authority to carry sidearms while on duty.

RCMP may get van

The Drayton Valley RCMP detachment will be getting the use of a Checkmate Van.

When is the question. Recently, 10 municipal forces across the province received the vans. They were paid for through the solicitor general's department advertising budget.

The vans have been circulated around the province in the ongoing campaign to remind drivers not to drink and drive.

While the 10 vans went to non-RCMP detachments, another six are on the way for the RCMP, such as Drayton Valley.

Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey says the next series of vans will likely be sent out to subdivisions and major RCMP detachments.

"We may have one on an interim basis," Humphrey told The Western Review.

Asked if impaired driving was a problem here, Humphrey replied, "It's always a concern."

Old friendships renewed among class of '78

By Steve Fletcher

The years really haven't been too hard on the Class of '78.

"There's still a lot who look the same as they did 10 years ago," says Lorrie Wirsiuk (nee Larsen), a fellow grad.

Rob McIsaac, a member of the Class of '78 who now works as a partman in Edmonton, quips that "the addition of children is really the only change as far as physical features go."

And Wendy Lohvitz nee Moroz, now an elementary teacher in Spruce Grove, notes the biggest transformation was cultural rather than physical.

It was most interesting to see last night how people's dance styles have changed, she says.

All three were in Drayton Valley on the Labor Day weekend to take in the 10-year reunion of Frank Maddock high school's Class of '78.

Trudy Kjerfve, who organized the weekend reunion along with fellow '78 grads Lynda Huber, Teresa Dunham and Karen Vanstone, said locating their fellow school mates was the most difficult hurdle they had to contend with.

By the time we found everybody — their names and addresses — 196 invitations had been sent out, including all those who attend ed school with the grads in 1978.

As it turned out, 71 grads and their families showed up from as far away as Ontario to renew old friendships.

The reunion began Friday evening at the Westwind Motor Inn. Following registration on Saturday, FMHS principal Alan Day provided tours of the school. The day was capped with a dinner and dance. Sunday was Family Day and included a not-too-serious game of slow-pitch in Rocky Rapids.

Co-organizer Dunham says the reunion reminded a lot of fond memories.

It was wonderful, she said. "Everything went as planned except that we ran out of rum."

A lot of the grads said they're looking forward to a 20-year reunion.

All proceeds from the reunion, estimated at $500, will go to the Frank Maddock high school scholarship fund.

The only change in physical features was the addition of children, said one grad.

Bob Ledvitz gives son Gregory a push during Family Day.

Adding a little flavor to the game.

Renewing friendships.

This youngster gets a taste of just what a 10-year reunion is all about. It will be her turn in the year 2010.

The 71 grads who returned to their old stomping grounds pose for a grad picture — the second time around.

Good service important at Penneys

By Steve Fletcher

Penneys Drug Mart, a fixture at Dodson Plaza since the mall first opened in 1975, plans on expanding to upwards of 6000 square feet.

Penneys' majority owner Gary Hanson says the expansion will include knocking out a wall to an adjacent store currently used as storage space — and moving in.

The expansion, when completed, will make the pharmacy "a bit bigger" than the average-sized drug store, said Gary Hanson.

He has been operating Penneys since it came into existence in December 1975. A self-described sports fanatic with interests in skiing, tennis and horseback riding, Hanson grew up in Saskatchewan in a small town called Eastend, a community of about 1000 residents.

Hanson attended the University of Saskatchewan with the goal of becoming a veterinarian. Instead, he switched his focus to pharmacy and took his degree in 1977.

Business feature

After working in Saskatchewan for a number of years, Hanson came to Drayton Valley, becoming a part owner in 1976 and majority owner in 1978.

Three years ago, long-time Penneys pharmacist Gwen Fleming joined on as a part owner.

"I enjoy working with the public and I like being busy, which we are," she said just before dealing with another customer.

Fleming graduated from Frank Macdonald high school before attending the University of Alberta to study pharmacy.

The staff also includes a part-time druggist, Jean Sheppard, and 10 full-time and part-time clerks.

In 1966, another change occurred at Penneys when the store became a member of the Guardian Drugs group of stores.

Hanson said joining Guardian was a positive step for Penneys.

"It gives us more purchasing power, and offers better prices to our customers and more variety."

He added that Penneys has always relied heavily on service to keep the customers coming back.

"We've got convenience and lots of parking," said Hanson, who noted the store is open for business 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

"Good service is very important," he pointed out. "We make sure we live up to our clients' friendly and courteous service."

Penneys' owners Gary Hanson and Gwen Fleming take a break behind the druggist's counter. The 13-year-old pharmacy is getting ready to undergo an expansion at its Interagency presents...

In many of the communities in rural Alberta, there seems to be a problem finding enough resources to deliver human services.

Drayton Valley is certainly no exception. Counsellors, social workers, police, teachers, doctors and nurses are stretched to their limit doing their job. And yet, there is always a call for more help. Human services, those that community members turn to when they are in need, form a network and are therefore interdependent — these services need each other in order to do their job more effectively. One way to improve the quality of services in a community is through interagency coordination.

In November 1987, representatives from various human service organizations in Drayton Valley met and an interagency group was established.

While the group has no formal mandate or structure, the focus has been identified as cooperation among individual agencies and programs to direct resources to the identified needs within the community.

Meeting once a month, the represented agencies have informed each other about their work, and activities have been meshed in an attempt to meet community needs in a more holistic way. One major success was the suicide awareness workshop held in January 1988, resulting from a need identified in Drayton Valley and addressed through the coordinated efforts of Interagency.

In response to identified concerns, Interagency has developed a public awareness campaign focusing on three social issues, very relevant to the times and to our community. With the cooperation of The Western Review, the issues of suicide, family violence and drug abuse will be explored in a series of articles and public lectures over the next four months.

For more information please contact Mental Health Services (542 3140) or the Health Unit (542 4415).

Next week: The first in a series of articles on suicide.

Garage sales a serious addiction

By Chris Kreiser

Along with spring cleaning fever comes the compulsion to go to garage sales.

The cleaning fever, fortunately, lasts only about a week, two at the most. Going to garage sales, however, lasts all summer long.

It's an addiction I take seriously. I've chosen to ignore Fred's comment that I need help. He's wrong when he says I'm saving him more money than we can afford. You wouldn't believe the bargains there are at garage sales. It's incredible. I have some real treasures to prove it.

And if it's saving money that interests Fred - no problem. Take last week, for example.

I decided to combine resources and have a garage sale with some friends. Because we didn't have too much to contribute to the sale, it was held at their house. Consequently, we had to borrow our neighbor's truck to haul our two empty whiskey kegs to the garage sale.

Originally we had bought them as rain barrels, but hey, how much rain do you need, right? So I convinced Fred on this sweltering hot day to help me load them. After 20 minutes of maneuvering the kegs into the truck, we drove to the sale. Getting them off was a little less strenuous but still took a few fancy moves.

I marked them at $5 each. Within the half-hour someone spotted the kegs and explained excitedly how wonderful they would be as planters since they were cut in half.

Coffee with Chris

"Heck, paint them up, fill them with bright flowers and they would look smashing on your patio," he enthused. He stepped up for a closer look.

"Ten bucks for the pair? Wow, that's great! You know how much these things are worth now?" He asked incredulously.

"Uh, um," I stammered, "I'm terribly sorry, but those have already been sold." (I know a good deal when I see one.)

So I bought them.

The guy was right, they did look great on my patio. And I DO know how much they are new; I just saved Fred a bundle.

Now, I wonder if I can borrow that truck again.

Not too early to check for heat loss

By Samia Valleevand
While it is hardly the time to get out the shovel, late summer and early fall is the season for assessing the "winterworthiness" of your home.

If last winter's home heating bills delivered an unexpected sting, look for places where heat - and money - may be leaking out. The investigation should begin with the windows. An average home's heat loss through windows may account for 10 to 25 per cent of its fuel bill.

Consumer's Corner

Measures such as caulking, weatherstripping and certain types of stormproofing are relatively inexpensive and can reduce heat loss substantially. Replacement windows can be very expensive. The payback in fuel dollars wouldn't cover the expenditure for many years.

It just doesn't pay to buy replacement windows unless your current ones are rotting away, the panes are broken or they are terminally unfashionable. If you must go the replacement route, do it very carefully. The complexity of the task has made the industry ripe for sleazy sales techniques.

A good defense against unscrupulous operators is to do a little research. Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the Canadian Window and Door Manufacturers' Association and the Canadian Standards Association all have available information

Educational television can only lead to unreasonable expectations and eventual disappointment when your child discovers that the letters of the alphabet do not leap up out of books and dance around the room with royal blue chickens." (Fran Lebowitz)

Task force gains greater appreciation of isolated areas

By Joe Clark
Yellowhead AFP

The federal government's task force on Northern and Isolated Allowance visited the Yellowhead riding Aug 25 and 26, spending a day in Edmonton and Hinton.

The task force was struck by Mike Wilson, minister of finance, in response to concerns expressed by northern members of parliament over the application of the benefit.

I was approached by a number of constituents who were confused by the existing system and perceived it to be inequitable in a number of cases. So I, along with other affected MPs, approached Wilson to see what we could do to simplify the benefit in a way that ensured fairness.

Various representatives groups and individuals from a number of Yellowhead communities had consultations with the task force including Jasper, Cadomin, Hinton, Edson, Whitecourt, Fox Creek, Blue Ridge, Swan Hills and Little Smoky.

Most communities in Yellowhead that made representations to the task force thought the Northern and Isolated Allowance was a good program but definitely lacked fairness in some areas. Many asked that the task force investigate a gradient system of allocating the benefit in stages based on degree of isolation climate, population, etc. Currently, taxpayers qualify or do not qualify for the benefit.

Task force members were impressed by the comprehension of the briefs presented and gained a greater appreciation of the isolated areas of Yellowhead. Chairman Rene Brunelle stated, "I heard many problems similar to those in my home of Moonbeam." Brunelle has lived in Moonbeam, Ont. for most of his life. Moonbeam has a population of about 1500 people and is 30 km north of Sudbury.

Other task force members include Edward Paule of Corner Brook, Nfld and Michael MacGillivray of Prince George, B.C.

The task force was struck in April 1988 and has a deadline of October 1989 to report recommendations to Finance Minister Mike Wilson. The task force is not precluded from reporting early.

HAPPY 30th
We love ya Celina

We're on a downward spiral

We live in a post-Christian society.

That is, western culture has rejected the Christian values and standards which characterized it only a few decades ago. Of course, 40 years ago not everyone lived a morally-upright life. But then, at least, there was a general consensus as to what was right and wrong.

Today such a consensus is conspicuously absent. We no longer talk about right and wrong. Instead we speak in terms of normal and abnormal. Truth is no longer absolute but fluctuates with the whims of popular opinion. There remains a lingering moral conscience which, like a cut flower, is quickly fading.

There are three possible responses to such a shift in thinking. We may react with excitement, "No more rules - how liberating." Or with mindless apathy, our response may be, "So what?" The third option is to reflect thoughtfully upon the consequences of living without a Christian foundation.

What are the results of living contrary to God's revealed standards of truth? The Bible calls it judgement. In the first chapter of

From the Pastor's pen

By Pastor Glen Lonie
DV Alliance Church

Romans, Paul outlines the downward spiral of those who have known the truth and deliberately turned from it.

What does that judgement entail?

Foolishness in values instead of placing highest value upon their relationship with God they worship material things.

Disorientation in sexual relations. Instead of acknowledging the obvious created design they pervert the beautiful gift of sexuality.

Fragmentation and disintegration of the social order. Instead of upholding integrity and respect they promote greed, deceit and lawlessness.

It does not take a prophet to realize that such a society is in decline and facing death.

Is there any hope for our post-Christian society?

Yes, there is hope, but it requires repentance. We must retrace our steps as individuals and as a society to the God of our fathers.

MLA Shirley Cripps attends Maciborsky's 40th anniversary

By Bernice Johnson
A surprise 40th wedding anniversary celebration was held in honor of Pete and Gladys Maciborsky Aug. 21 at their home.

Their children did an excellent job keeping the gala event a secret and did the decorating and preparations while their parents were attending church Sunday morning.

Their wedding attendants of 40 years ago, Bernice Johnson and George Maciborsky, were present for the occasion. The couple received a congratulatory telegram from the Wilkes of Surrey, B.C.

An additional surprise was attendance of MLA Shirley Cripps, who presented the couple with a congratulatory certificate from the Alberta government.

There will be a bridal shower for Margie Hammond and Rene Deucette Thursday, Sept. 15 at 8 p.m. at the Legion hall.

Gymnastics registrations will take place Wednesday (tomorrow), Sept. 14 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Alder Flats school.

The Rose Creek Gym Club will be operating out of the Alder Flats school gym once a week for a 12 week season, starting Sept. 18. Participants must be at least five years old. Two programs will be offered: kindergarten and recreational.

The club is still looking for a male volunteer to help coach or possibly run the boys' program. Anyone interested in filling this position is asked to call Linda at 388-2400.

The Rose Creek Gym Club has received confirmation of funding in the amount of $1,155 from the Alberta Sports Council. The money will be used to purchase balance beams.

A power tumbling, coaching clinic will be held Saturday, Sept. 17 from noon to 4 p.m. at the Alder Flats school. Dennis Swanson of Mount Royal Gymnastic Club, Calgary, will be the instructor.

An athletic first aid level 1

course will be held in the Alder Flats school Saturday, Sept. 24 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. You must have Grade 10 or be over 16 years of age and pre-registered by Sept. 14.

The athletic first aid course is provided by the Sport Medicine Council of Alberta and provides a basic understanding of the care and prevention of athletic injuries. The course is hosted by the Alder Flats Buck Lake minor ball club.

For more information call Linda at 388-2400.

NDP candidate challenges opposition to debate

Submitted by
Muriel Stanley-Veane
NDP candidate

I feel the New Democrats offer a far better alternative to the present government or the choice of a separatist Secord.

I attribute the dissatisfaction expressed by the Reform Party to the fact the Conservatives have placed themselves in the position of having to satisfy their corporate benefactors.

An obvious example is the $15,000 donation by Principal Group to the Joe Clark election campaign in 1984. As we now know, this corporation was already in deep financial trouble. The hundreds and thousands of investors who lost money, in some cases their life savings, may wonder why such a large amount of their money was given to Joe Clark's campaign.

And we may all ask ourselves if we can trust politicians like Joe Clark to make decisions in the public interest when they are so heavily indebted to their corporate benefactors.

As we know, the New Democratic Party is a truly western populist party formed in the West in the 1930s, born out of a great need to have the ordinary peoples' needs and rights addressed. Founded to get a better deal for all Canadian, not just ordinary Canadians, the message is and was that the New Democrats represent your interests, the interests of the average person in Canada, not the economic objectives of the corporations.

It is true to say the amount of $15,000 is not large in relative terms in other corporate donations, but in Joe Clark's campaign it could be said to represent almost half of the entire campaign funds raised in the constituency.

Further evidence may lead us to believe that our interests are not being served, was published in the April issue of the Financial Times which showed that the banks and corporations generally gave donations in equal amounts to both the Liberals and the Conservatives, ie $75,000 to each from the Bank of Montreal, Power Corporation of Canada $78,822 to the Liberals and $70,860 to the Conservatives. Imasco $35,000 to each.

Our absentee MP doesn't even pretend he has any other interest in Yellowhead except to get elected. I don't think the people who live in this constituency and in this part of the province are willing to accept that. Our people are honest and hardworking and fully deserving of an MP's attention.

I challenge the two candidates who do not live in this area to debate the issues of this constituency - the issue of the Mulroney-Reagan trade deal, the debate over the taxes now imposed and the impending taxation imposed on ordinary Canadians to pay for all of the political promises and the political patronage being handed out now or about to be handed out.

Red meat nutrient-dense, protein-rich

By Bev Broke

Dietist Home Economist
Nutrient density is a way of evaluating the nutritional quality of a food by comparing the amounts of nutrients it contains against the amount of energy or calories it provides.

Another way of looking at nutrient density is to think in terms of the "energy budget" for the day. Suppose, for instance, your body size and activity pattern require an energy intake of 2000 calories per day. The food choices you make as you spend your energy allotment must also supply all your needs for all essential nutrients.

When you choose foods that are low in energy but high in nutrients you will meet these needs. However, if you choose foods that are high in energy but low in nutrients, you will reach your energy limit before your micronutrient needs are supplied.

In recent decades energy intakes have declined in Canada. However, no matter what your energy intake, your nutrient needs remain relatively constant.

At very high levels of energy intake, it is not very difficult to obtain adequate amounts of all the needed nutrients. At lower levels, however, food selection must be made more carefully. The foods eaten must be nutrient dense.

Nutrient density enters the picture when we see how much good nutrition red meat has to offer for a low contribution to daily calories. In a 2000 calorie diet, a 90 gram or single three ounce serving provides, in addition to excellent protein, measurable amounts of niacin, riboflavin, thiamin, vitamin B12, zinc and iron.

Most of the iron in beef and a large share of the iron in pork, is of the type called heme iron. Five to 10 times more available to the body than non-heme iron found in other foods. When meat is eaten along with other iron sources, it even increases the usability of non heme iron - as long as the non heme is consumed in the same meal as the meat.

Nutrient density is another reason why today's red meat is a wise food choice for a diet designed for optimal health.

For more information about your daily nutrient needs or the nutrient density of specific foods give me a call at Alberta Agriculture, 542-5388.

Support group acts as social outlet

Do you have difficulty catching your breath after climbing stairs? Take medication for respiratory problems? Have a cough that won't go away? Have problems understanding your doctor's explanation of your lung condition?

If you can say yes to any of these questions, a respiratory problems support group may help to provide some answers.

The COLD Respiratory Problems Club (chronic obstructive lung disease) began its second year Sept. 15 at the A.C.T. Centre in Rutherford Park, Edmonton.

The COLD club was organized in the summer of 1987 by a number of people with respiratory problems, representatives from several oxygen supply companies and the Alberta Lung Association. Membership is now over 200. COLD club president Harold Garett comments: "Our membership continues to grow and it is great that more members are taking part in the administrative activities of the club."

The club acts as a social outlet for those sharing a common problem as well as being educational. Guest speakers in the past have included physicians, respiratory therapists, pharmacists, a psychologist, a dietitian and a physiotherapist.

For more information about the COLD club and how to join, contact Connie Chapman at the Alberta Lung Association, 482-6527.

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark during a recent door-knocking trip in Drayton Valley

Clark leads polls according to weeklies

Incumbent Joe Clark appears to have the early lead in the Yellowhead riding election race.

According to a poll conducted by weekly newspapers in Grande Cache, Jasper, Hinton, Whitecourt and Edson, Clark had 25.9 per cent of the popular vote. Clark won the riding in 1984 with almost 75 per cent of the popular vote.

The Liberal party who has not yet named a candidate in Yellowhead, had 18 per cent of the vote.

The NDP, trying their luck in Yellowhead, with Murel Stanley Venns drew 18.5 per cent of the people.

The Reform Party of Canada, with their leader Preston Manning polled 5.6 per cent.

And, the Christian Heritage party, who say they plan to run a candidate got 2.3 per cent.

A spokesman for the Edson paper that spearheaded the vote, said Drayton Valley was not included as they didn't realize they were part of the Yellowhead riding.

The poll asked five per cent of the eligible voters in each of the five riding towns, what party they would cast their vote for if a federal election were called tomorrow.

Dangerous season for brush burning

This is a dangerous time of the year for brush pile burning. Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson says people burning brush should use extreme caution. "The ground is very dry," Fuson says.

If you are planning on burning some brush, don't set the fire on a bog.

The fire chief is very concerned about bush fires that are set now, may ignite again in the spring. The fire department experienced a rash of those type of fires earlier in the year. Acreage and farm owners are also urged to cut tall grass to limit the possibility of fire.

It's also the time of year when fireplaces are usually cleaned.

"You can't control the weather"

If you are clearing land now or have windrows and brush piles ready for burning, please remember: forest conditions remain extremely dry and extra caution is required.

Because of changing weather conditions and especially the potential for high winds, landowners are asked to contact their local District Forest Officer prior to any burning.

Even though you have obtained a Fire Permit, the responsibility for a safe burn remains with you. Make sure you are complying with all safety requirements, and never leave a fire unattended.

The aftermath of a fire is a tragic loss to both people and wildlife. And if our forests are to be enjoyed by future generations, we've all got to help prevent forest fires.

If you see smoke or fire in any forested area, report it by calling our Hot Line: 427-FIRE. Call collect. Call immediately.

Area folks enjoy holidays

By Alma Johnson

Dunna and Lanny Regamey and family of Spruce Grove and Linda and Carlos Mendez and family of Millwoods spent a weekend at their parents farm recently.

Bernie and Olive Town, accompanied by Rick and Fern Kidner and family, were on a holiday to the Dakotas and other points in the United States.

Glenn and Charlene Johnson and family exhibited cattle at the Mayerthorpe, Barrhead and Rimbey fairs. They were also the lucky winners of a gas barbecue in a draw at the Mayerthorpe fair.

Bruce and Sharon Dean and family have been holidaying at Campbell River, B.C. for a few weeks.

Sympathy is extended to Mary Mills, Jim Robinson and Alice Woloszyn and families on the death of a cousin in England.

Norm and Glenn Johnson and families attended and exhibited cattle at the Wildwood and Darwell agricultural fairs in August.

Hester Woloszyn is home after accompanying her mother on a two-week trip to Scotland.

Ken MacRae of Victoria, B.C. was home visiting his parents, Dick and Zetta MacRae and other relatives.

George and Bea Cherrington and Chester and Debbie Town and families were on a holiday trip to Los Angeles, Anaheim, Disneyland and other spots in California.

Dan and Debby Burki of Sanguedo were recent visitors at the Norm Johnson home.

The Wojciszewski family farm is the site of the latest oiling in this area.

The Shans Haukedal family has moved to Wabamun from their acreage in the Brightwood area.

Glenn and Charlene Johnson and family spend a weekend camping at some lakes near the Fox Creek area.

Moon Lake

Olive Town spent some time in Millwoods hospital after inhaling the fumes from a leaky line in their refrigerator.

The Moon Lake Thimbles 4-11 club had a display at the Drayton Valley agricultural fair. They won a first place ribbon for their efforts.

Don and Spud Cherrington spent a rassy weekend visiting Lloyd and Leona Redinger at Cold Lake.

Are you wearing your seatbelt?

I hope you are wearing your seat belt because I know they save lives. I know, because as an RCMP constable, I attend the scene of many accidents. I get to see what happens to people who don't wear their seat belts.

I see people who might have lived and kids who probably would not have been injured — if only they'd worn their seat belts

If you had my job and if you saw what I've seen, you'd wear your seat belt. And you'd do everything in your power to convince others to wear theirs. Because you'd know what I know: with your seat belt on, you're 8 times more likely to survive a collision and escape serious injury.

If we catch you without your seat belt on, it could cost you $25. If a collision catches you, it could cost you your life!

Seat Belt Blitz Now On!

The law in Alberta says you must wear your seat belt. And the police are actively enforcing this law. To reinforce the awareness of this law and of the safety benefits of seat belt use, we are conducting a special two-week campaign.

It's a "seat belt blitz". We are pulling drivers over and checking to see if seat belts are being worn.

If you are wearing yours, we'll thank you and quickly send you on your way. If you're not buckled up, it could cost you $25.00.
